“College Writing”

I. Instructor Introduction

Hello, my name is Mr. Brian Fleckenstein and I teach at Norwin High School during the day. I am from Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania and did my undergraduate at Mercyhurst University and my masters’ at Gannon University. I used to teach in Union City, PA from 2000 to 2004 before moving to Irwin. In addition to teaching at Norwin, I also coach track and cross country. Presently, I teach AP English 11 Language & Composition, College Writing, and Journalism Production. I have twelve years of teaching experience and a great deal of technological expertise, so don’t hesitate to ask any questions if they arrive and I will do my best to address them ASAP.

II. Course Information

I am assuming you have found your way onto the course and previewed the information. It is set up like a standard course; however, there may be some subtle differences:

- Weekly Set Up: The course is NOT structured by weeks, but rather by units with each culminating assignment being a FINAL paper.

- Crocodoc: you will be set up with a folder. ALL of your work will be stored and graded in here. Do NOT submit assignments through Moodle. I listed the assignments and I will enter grades through Moodle; however, I can give more feedback in Crocodoc.

- Chronological Order: The course is set up so you can teach see most of the information on the screen at once. The assignments, instructions, and notes are visible and in chronological order. It is imperative that you complete the assignments in order and not all at ONCE. Each assignment builds upon the next and feedback is needed between assignments.

So, make sure you preview the course ahead and ask if you ever are unsure.

III. Goals for the Course:

My goals for the course are probably much the same as you. I hope to get through it without many technological glitches or frustrations. I also hope that you learn a great deal and feel truly prepared for collegiate writing upon completion. BEST OF LUCK!!!
